P-Noy thanks troops for safe, longest procession

By Juanito L. Arellano and Josephine Gansil

AFTER 22 grueling hours, it left a trail of devotion stamped on the pavement. Church leaders pondering what had become of their flock, and the government's patting itself on the back for thwarting an alleged terrorist plot.

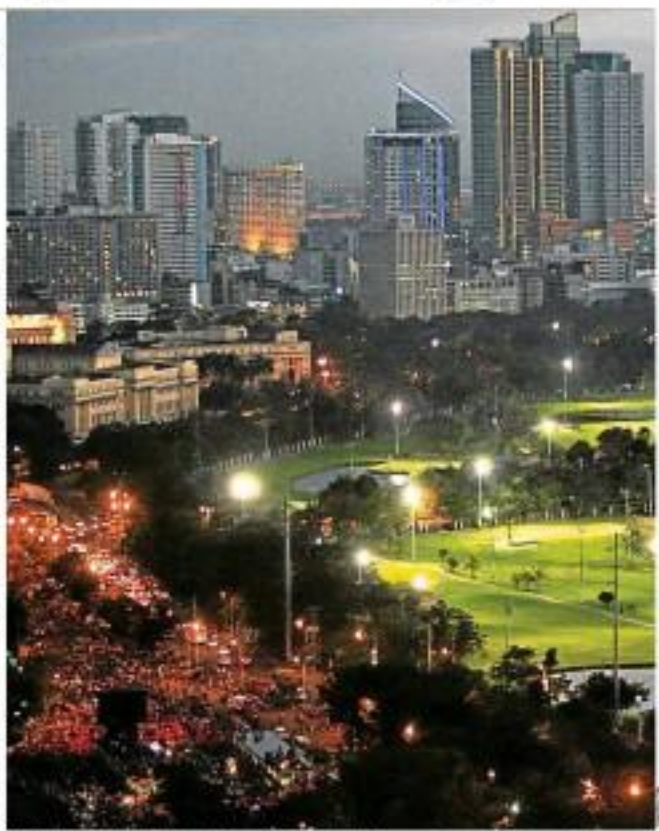

This year's procession of the Black Nazarene of Quiapo entered the books as the longest in the history of the 17th century icon—thence, no thanks, no concession, no school and the refusal of devout believers to take shortcuts.

The statue was paraded morning at Quiapo Grandstand in Manila at 8 a.m. on Monday and continued to its home at Quiapo Church at 6:11 a.m. the next day, making its way through a series of pilgrims down a kilometer route in the city's central corridor.

Organizers actually raised the unprecedented delay in the Nazarene's carriage rolling early in the procession, when two of its wheels broke under the sheer crush of devotees trying to secure it. In late afternoon, all the wheels had been damaged and devotees could only move the carriage by lifting it off the ground.

The procession could have been cut short by at least seven hours had the devotees agreed late Monday night to skip parts of the original route and take a shorter way to Quiapo, as suggested by police and police officials.

But the predominantly male crowd angrily rejected the suggestion. For about an hour, at the corner of Palawan and Villamor Streets, the rolling icon almost stopped like a tug-of-war with the Nazarene caught in the middle.

PASSION AND SERENITY Hundreds of thousands of worshipful Black Nazarene devotees pass by the graven of the Intransigent God Carver on Monday night during the procession that lasted 22 hours, the longest in the history of the 17th century image. In the background is Ermita district's skyline.

Prosecutors: Corona may have doctored SALN

By Christine V. Eguerra, Gil C. Cabasanga and Cynthia D. Belano

HOUSE prosecutors yesterday continued a media campaign against Chief Justice Renato Corona in spite of a stern warning from senators that they were pressurizing releasing evidence in violation of the Senate impeachment rules.

The prosecutors also later suggested that the Chief Justice might have tampered his statement of assets, liabilities and net worth (SALN).

At the "Urgency in Business" weekly forum, Justice Rep. Juan Edgardo Amara said: "It's possible that he [Corona] might have 'doctored' it because we have not seen his SALN. That's a possibility."

Blackline Rep. Rocco Quinsion said that in Corona's 2002 SALN, his net worth amounted to P13 million—lower than the P14 million he declared previously.

Demands sanctions on House prosecutors

By Christine V. Eguerra

CHIEF Justice Renato Corona has asked the Senate impeachment court to impose sanctions against House prosecutors for releasing purported evidence against him in a string of press conferences before his trial which begins on Monday.

Corona cited last week media reports about his resignation sale at Bonifacio Global City in Tagay City.

He said the acquisition of the property "was carefully admitted and explained" in his official reply to the impeachment complaint against him.

In a seven-page memorandum, the Chief Justice described the actions by Rep. Niel Tugue, Jr. and other members of the House prosecution team as "a clear plan to destroy their image before the loss of public opinion and justice."

By Christine V. Eguerra and Marlon Ramon

MANACORP is not about to tell what it says is a tactic to divert attention away from impeached Chief Justice Renato Corona, as it reported earlier to its investigators Associate Justice Antonio Carpio for his alleged unexplained wealth.

The Palace said it was focused on Corona and his trial in the Senate.

Massive mangrove project to bring fireflies to Donsol

By Kristine L. Alar

A SHOWER of flying "stars" will soon accompany white clouds in Donsol, Surigao province, thanks to a massive mangrove planting project on the coast of one of the country's top tourist zones.

The World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF) Philippines, started to plant 30,000 mangrove seedlings at Donsol's Bantayan Sibuyan last month to bolster and protect the ecosystem that is shared by white sharks and tiny organisms like plankton and fireflies.

The mangroves stretch numerous along the coast and in the water, attracting both white sharks and fireflies, the WWF said.

"White sharks congregate in Donsol because of the plankton. Mangroves create nutrients discharged by Donsol's still-building rivers, one of the few habitats where fireflies still thrive," said WWF Philippines project manager Paul Banaag.

"Remove mangroves and the fireflies shall be driven off. Without the mangroves Investigation report, which is to start on Jan. 26.

"We are not concerned with right now the issue on the leadership of Chief Justice Corona," the news box in the alleged report on the political results of Chief Justice Corona," Presidential spokesperson Editha Lacorda said.

One of the articles of impeachment against Corona concerns his failure to disclose the ownership of assets, including real estate, to the public.

Lacorda said the Palace was not interested in looking into the assets of Corona until he assumed office. Supreme Court official alleged that the assets of Corona were not disclosed to the public until he assumed office.

Lacorda stressed that the report is to investigate the assets of Corona, believed to be the Palace's choice to replace Corona, noting that the assets of Corona had already been disclosed to the public.

Prosecutors from the House of Representatives claimed that Corona owned a 300-square-meter property with three parking slots in the profit The Belles of Tondo, a 1.5-hectare property in Marikina City, and a house and lot in Marikina City, and a house and lot in Marikina City.

No sacred cow

Despite Secretary Francisco Arce and other top members of Corona's cabinet, it is possible that the Palace will not be involved in the investigation.

But Lacorda Corona, created for Corona, and has made that his choice would also prove that he had already accepted the report.

Lacorda said people were free to believe in the public say evidence against Corona.

"This is a position to defend himself. Let him defend himself," Lacorda said.

Worth P46 million

In a summary of his 2011 that he has received the accompanying watchdog, Kaya Kaya Movement for Good Governance and Ethical Leadership, Corona alleged for his assets in 2010 of P46.2 million and his salary of P15,000.

Corona declared his income tax his personal assets of P46.2 million and his salary of P15,000. Corona said he had no other assets.

Corona said he had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets.

Corona said he had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets.

Corona said he had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets.

Corona said he had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets, and the Palace had no other assets.

Speculations

"There are all speculations. I hope all these speculations stop because it's not doing the court any good," Marqueta said.

"I don't think the purpose here is to reveal the assets of Corona, it's to prove speculations and we don't have to justify them."

He said the court is not to make any decision about the future wealth.

"We're not sure if that constitutionality really belongs to him. Corona said it's his but he said that in his 2011. If he had declared that, then I don't see any problem with it," Marqueta said.

Discretionary tactic

Asked whether the report to investigate Corona's alleged non-disclosure would mean a decision to force Corona out, "It is not."

"The issue right now is on the impeachment issue of Chief Justice Corona. In all these who are trying to direct our attention to Corona's assets, if you have any proof in the system, then do it in the House of Representatives," Lacorda said.

He mentioned his call for Corona to prove his 2011 that the report could be the same as the alleged 2011 assets.

"We are not unreasonable request in light of transparency and accountability," he said.

The Supreme Court issued guidelines in 1999 advising SALGs to be withheld from the public to protect judges from harassment.

Erice asks SC to dismiss judge

News page B-10

Erice last filed against Erice last to his alleged failure to meet the requirements of city hall employees in the Commission on Governmental Services (COGS) investigation of the city.

"Erice's Commission has another issue that the (Tribune) staff has no jurisdiction over the Commission," Erice said in a letter after filing his complaint.

"The COGS petition for a declaration is not a writ. That's why I don't understand why (Erice) would sue the COGS," he added.

In his pleading, Erice asked the Supreme Court to dismiss the COGS petition for a declaration and to order the city to pay the attorney's fees against Erice for his "waste of time and money."

"The COGS issued by Judge Erice is a purely arbitrary and arbitrary in all legal principles in the COGS," Erice argued, asking the court to require the Commission to require the Office of the City Clerk to file the petition.

Attacks on corporate past hound Romney's campaign

MALIBU, Calif.—On the way to a highly expected victory in New Hampshire, Republican front-runner Mitt Romney struggled to respond to attacks on his business record on Monday as it was the 50th presidential election to reveal his life before a tighter vote to install Obama.

The New York native capitulated that himself on there in the business world in Romney's life in the nation's primary with 15 years that he worked like he never spent being people—and still was being asked to answer on his choice of words.

When asking business leaders about how he managed his wealth, he was able to choose their own health insurance, Romney said. "If you don't like what they do, you can fire them. I like being able to fire people who provide services for me."

In earlier, former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman quipped: "There's another thing 'Mitt Romney' does. Governor Romney fires me. Governor Romney enjoys firing people. I enjoy getting jobs."

Romney's former press secretary blasted him, too, when Romney said he was fired from his job, even though only early Monday showed a slight rise in his lead over his nearest rival.

Later, Romney fired another attack. "I spent, whether the media or the Democrats or socialists or whatever, I had business made gains."

The small business/New England state is likely to give Romney his second victory in an eight-week campaign over Barack Obama in Iowa but not, making him the first Republican candidate who is not an incumbent president to win both states. It will also give him a second place finish, which could be one of the five other candidates.

But much of the focus in the Republican campaign is already on the Jan. 21 primary in South Carolina, a more conservative state where Romney's record as governor is being scrutinized.

A fundraising group supporting former House of Representatives Speaker Newt Gingrich said it will release a 27-episode documentary that portrays Romney as a job creator when he was a venture capitalist in the 1980s. A Romney spokesman said the video was posted on YouTube as Gingrich stepped up his criticism of Romney.

Romney has sought to tell himself as a job creator, someone who can change up the US economy, as it is a time when the jobs are scarce. Though improving slightly, as of 2011, it is still the worst since the 1980s, said Democratic President Barack Obama on that day.

in his second year.

The day after the filing, Romney threatened to down out Romney's reported admission of his time running Bain Capital, a firm that bought companies and converted them.

The happy to describe his opposition to Romney's economy and the fact that if you take all the businesses that are located in the state, you can get 100,000 jobs, Romney said collectively, many may not add up to 100,000 new jobs," he told a press conference.

Syria's Assad says he won't step down

BEIRUT—Syrian President Bashar al-Assad said on Tuesday he would not step down, insisting that he still has his people's support despite a 15-month-old uprising against him.

The Assad regime has been accused of human rights abuses, including the killing of thousands of civilians. The opposition forces have been accused of human rights abuses, including the killing of thousands of civilians.

Electronics pulled down exports in Nov.

By Rex T. Obonero

RECEIVED exports continued to add in November 2011, with receipts dropping by 10.4 percent from the $4.14 billion reported in the same month the previous year.

The sharp drop in national shipments of electronic products pulled down overall sales in November to $3.14 billion, despite huge gains from other items such as copper cathodes and sugar, the National Statistics Office (NSO) reported.

In the last five months of 2011, exports were slumped to levels not seen since May, when exports began to drop. That trend continued in November.

According to statistics agency Kinross, Inc.'s report, seven of 20 national items, such as the $4.68 billion reported in October 2011.

Win-win situation

It's more fun for PH when one of our own—Wini Camacho—reaches for the stars

By Yves R. Salazar

WINI CAMACHO is truly Pinoy. He sees the humor in jeepneys flouting the Best logo, the whimsy of automotive opulence, on their stainless steel hoods. In a Saturday morning interview, this Mercedes-Benz designer lets out a hearty laugh when this writer references him of such local eccentricities. "I don't think the Mercedes-Benz headquarters would encourage that, but I find it flattering. It only shows which brand they really value or look up to."

Of those jeepney-driven dreams to drive a Mercedes-Benz would never fully materialize and blossom. What has resulted has—design for Mercedes-Benz in Western Europe. Just like has been living this dream job for more than 15 years now.

Add flair

by embellishing
plain lampshades
with decals
and beads

Lighten up your lampshades

HERE IS how you can reinvent or update the look of any room by adding a little flare to a lampshade. If you're tired of the ordinary white or plain-colored lampshade, redecorate it by adding decals to the surface of the shade. This is an easy way to give new life to your room.

You can get beautiful decals from Scentsy or Gracie's. They are available in all sizes and shapes. You can also use the famous Japan House Crafts stickers known as the PIR stickers, where they have the decal in different designs. Cut them to the size of the design or pattern you like, and stick them onto the surface of your lamp.

You can also purchase colorful stickers paper at National Book Store and using your own original designs, cut out patterns and designs. Use spray bottles and washcloth the decals with little round heads, all you have to do is glue them on, and the design will create a beautiful original pattern. By adding a little twist to the design by using different cut heads, cut more colors. Use white glue to seal them on. High lighting the lampshade with a brush will make your design and give them a new meaning.

Let's bring back the habit of saying 'thank you'

THIS IS probably a very appropriate topic to raise this year's season. Many are here just finished the giving holiday of the holidays. It is an appropriate time to appreciate those who have given you gifts.

The act of saying thank you is a habit that is hard to come by. You may be surprised that you may not have it in others as you expect. Have many gifts received this holiday season have you finally given thanks yet?

We all grow up with the customary thank you cards, many we used to receive or think it is those who have given us gifts or have done nice things for us.

It is always a pleasure to receive a handwritten thank you note. Not in this modern age, there are many who have given us gifts or have done nice things for us.

A simple phrase can mean so much. This will mean a great way for you to express your love to a friend or relative who has taken the time to send you a gift for the holidays.

A few phrases will mean so much. A simple expression of gratitude for the time you and your family have taken the time to send you a gift for the holidays.

In this day of social networking, even a simple phrase can mean so much. This will mean a great way for you to express your love to a friend or relative who has taken the time to send you a gift for the holidays.

Notes, little, please only of thanks will be well-taken by the gift-givers. Most of the time a gift is given with the intent that you have in heart expressed to the gift. So expressing thanks is really the only polite thing to do.

This is also a perfect time to send your friends and family a little note to let them know how much you appreciate their gift. So expressing thanks is really the only polite thing to do.

Happy 2012.

Janet, this is simply giving beyond being polite. It also reflects the value of gratitude.

Despite our busy lives, thank you is not because they are simple, but it is because they are simple enough to be given.

For instance, saying thank you is a simple thing to do, but it is not because they are simple enough to be given.

In gratitude, of course, I don't forget to say thank you to the people who have given me gifts.

'Kapatid' David Archuleta

By Allan Ponce
Contributor

THE YEAR 2011 saw TV's aggressively stepping up some of the biggest names in local show biz such as 'Nora Falcó, Ags Magdula, Lorna Lito and others. This year, the Kapamilya network has taken a very different by adding 'Kapamilya Mo' 2011. David Archuleta is in the growing list of stars.

In 'Kapamilya Mo' 2011

Local City Press and Ats Gossamer announced that the 21-year-old singer will arrive in Manila this Friday. Archuleta will be putting down the solo he wrote to try his hands at acting in a prime-time slot, which will also be his homecoming. Archuleta is a native of the United States.

David Archuleta is a native of the United States.

The event is a pleasant surprise for the local fans, especially after Archuleta's earlier announcement that he would be taking a hiatus from the music industry to embark on a two-year religious mission for the Mormon Church.
